

THE START OF THE 110TH CONGRESS
January 1 - 3, 2007

Americans are upbeat about the next two years with the new, Democratic-controlled Congress taking office in Washington, but they are doubtful that Congress and President George W. Bush will be able to work together - both in general and in addressing Americans' top priority for Congress, the situation in Iraq.

And as Democrats take control of Congress, the President's approval rating remains low, as it was last month, with just 30% of Americans approving of the way he is handling his job overall. Even after the execution of Saddam Hussein, his approval rating for handling Iraq remains low at only 23%.

Two-thirds of Americans say they feel optimistic about the next two years with the Democrats in control of Congress, while just a quarter are pessimistic. Partisanship factors into these views, with 84% of Democrats reporting they are optimistic. Nearly half of Republicans are optimistic.

FEELINGS ABOUT NEW CONGRESS

	All	Dems	Reps	Inds
Optimistic	68%	84%	47%	67%
Pessimistic	25	10	47	23

In addition, nearly half expects that this Congress will accomplish more than Congress usually does in a two-year period. But some see problems ahead: a third thinks this Congress will accomplish less than usual. Those expectations are strongly tied to partisanship.

CONGRESS WILL ACCOMPLISH ... THAN USUAL?

More	49%	48%	38%	52%
Less	32	30	42	30

Previous Congresses have fared both better and worse in public expectations at the start of their terms. In early 1995, just after the 1994 elections that gave control of Congress to the Republicans, slightly more people had high expectations: 52% expected Congress to accomplish more than usual. Expectations were at their lowest in January 1999, in the midst of the impeachment of President Bill Clinton, as Republicans retained control. Then, just 38% expected that Congress to accomplish more than usual.

IRAQ: THE HIGHEST PRIORITY

Americans couldn't be clearer when asked their priority for the new Congress - 45% volunteer Iraq. The economy/jobs and health care are tied for a distant second place, volunteered by just 7%, followed by immigration (6%).

WANT NEW CONGRESS TO CONCENTRATE ON:

War in Iraq	45%
Economy/jobs	7
Health care	7
Immigration	6

Most Americans think the Democrats in Congress will try to start bringing U.S. troops home from Iraq -- something a majority of Americans would like to see happen. 35% expect the Democrats to decrease U.S. troops in Iraq, and another 36% expect them to try to remove all U.S. troops.

ON IRAQ, EXPECT DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS TO:

Increase U.S. troops	12%
Keep same number of troops	8
Decrease U.S. troops	35
Remove all U.S. troops	36

Nevertheless, less than one in 10 Americans believes the Democrats in Congress have developed a clear plan for dealing with the situation in Iraq.

DO DEMOCRATS HAVE CLEAR PLAN FOR IRAQ?

Yes	8%
No	82

Only one in 5 Americans think President George W. Bush has a clear plan for dealing with the situation in Iraq - just 20% say he does. The public's views on this question have gotten somewhat more negative since 2005. 51% of Republicans think President Bush does not have a plan for Iraq, as do nine in 10 Democrats.

Half of Americans doubt the President and the Democratic members of Congress will be able to work together to deal with the situation in Iraq. 41% expect they will work together in a fair and non-partisan manner. Democrats are somewhat divided on this question, while more than half of both Republicans and Independents do not think the President and the Democrats will work together on Iraq.

When asked about cooperation in general, Americans give similar answers.

This poll was conducted after the December 29th execution of Saddam Hussein and during the controversy over the execution. Americans don't expect the execution to improve the situation in Iraq. In fact, 40% believe the execution will result in MORE attacks on U.S. troops, while half think the level of attacks will stay the same. Just 5% say Saddam's execution will lead to fewer attacks against U.S. troops.

And as for the future stability of Iraq, nearly six in ten Americans think Saddam Hussein's execution will have no effect. 21% think the country will become more stable, while a similar number - 18% - think it will become less stable.

When it comes to domestic issues, two thirds of Americans expect the new Congress will raise the minimum wage, something Democrats have made a priority.

42% expect immigration reform to be enacted, and a similar percentage - 39% - expects taxes to go up now that the Democrats control Congress, up from 32% in November.

PRESIDENT GEORGE W. BUSH

The President has started off 2007 with an overall job approval rating similar to his rating at the end of 2006. 30% of Americans now approve of the job Bush is doing as President. 31% approved in December.

BUSH'S JOB APPROVAL RATING

	Now	12/2006
Approve	30%	31%
Disapprove	63	63

30% is the lowest approval rating measured for this President in CBS News polls. The President is being hurt by public dismay over the war in Iraq.

President Bush's approval rating is lower than that of President Bill Clinton's in January 1995 when the Republicans took control of Congress, one of Clinton's low points. Back then, 42% of Americans approved of the job Clinton was doing as President.

PRESIDENTIAL JOB RATING

	G.W. Bush Now	Clinton 1/1995
Approve	30%	42%
Disapprove	63	46

Much of the President's low approval rating stems from the situation in Iraq -- the issue Americans want the new Congress to concentrate on first. Only 23% approve of George W. Bush's handling of Iraq; 72% disapprove. Last month, just 21% approved of his handling of the situation there -- the lowest number ever.

BUSH'S JOB HANDLING IRAQ

Approve	23%	21%
Disapprove	72	75

The President has received only a slight bump in support from his base on this measure since last month. In December, just 47% of Republicans approved of Bush's handling of the situation in Iraq; in this poll 51% of Republicans approve. Still, this number is significantly lower than the 70% of Republicans who approved in November.

Republicans	51%	47%	70%
Democrats	6%	5%	3%
Independents	18%	17%	23%

President Bush's approval rating on the economy is up some from last month, perhaps reflecting the general optimism, and the fact that six in ten Americans rate the economy as being in good condition. Today, 41% of Americans approve of Bush's handling of the economy, up 5 points from December and his highest rating on this issue since July 2005. In addition, 43% now approve of his handling of terrorism.

GERALD RUDOLPH FORD

Americans fondly remember former President Gerald Rudolph Ford, who passed away on December 26th. In this poll, 69% approve of the way he handled his job as president; just 4% disapprove.

PRES. FORD JOB RATING

(Now)
Approve	69%
Disapprove	4
Don't know	27

Having endured the Watergate scandal and President Richard Nixon's resignation, the American public welcomed Gerald Ford as he assumed the presidency in August 1974 with an approval rating of 71% -- but that was the highest level it would reach.

Approval of Ford's presidency was short-lived; his job approval rating fell when he pardoned Nixon shortly after he took office and never really recovered. Most Americans felt that his pardon of Nixon was a mistake, and the poor economy and U.S. pullout from Vietnam probably also contributed to his lagging approval ratings.

This poll was conducted among a random sample of 993 adults nationwide, interviewed by telephone January 1-3, 2007. The error due to sampling for results based on the entire sample could be plus or minus three percentage points. The error for subgroups is higher.
